Caya[®] contoured diaphragm

Diaphragm made of silicone for contraceptive use

The Caya[®] contoured diaphragm is a new female contraceptive barrier device – easy-to-use and hormone-free. Caya[®] acts as a mechanical barrier that prevents sperms from entering the uterus.

Indications:

- Women,
- who can't or don't want to use hormonal methods (e.g. due to increased risk of thrombosis)
 - who can't or don't want to use an IUD
 - who are breastfeeding
 - who want contraception only when necessary
 - after giving birth/ between two pregnancies
 - who are allergic to latex
 - in combination with natural methods of family planning (e.g. symptothermal method)

Properties:

- hormone-free
- easy to use – comparable to the use of a tampon
- safe and reliable
- no side effects
- economical: can be used for up to two years
- ecological: no waste, reusable
- latex-free
- single-size design fits broad range of women
- no impairment of sexual sensations of either partner
- only to be used when necessary

Use:

- is inserted into the vagina like a tampon before intercourse
- covers the cervix
- is placed between the back part of the vaginal dome and the space behind the pubic bone

Contraindications

- in the first 6 weeks after childbirth
- when a conventional diaphragm of 60mm and smaller or 85mm and larger were previously used
- in case of strong descent of the pelvic floor/uterine prolapse
